SEC.-TREASURER REPORTS COLLECTIONS SATISFACTORY

Over $3,000.00 More Taxes Collected than at Sept. 30th last. Assessments Adjusted. Application for Relief Received. All-night Lighting to be Resumed. More City Property is Sold.

A regular meeting of the city council was held on Tuesday evening with all the members in attendance.

After the adoption of the minutes of the last meeting, Mrs. Owen addressed the council, asking for assistance for a needy family. The matter was referred to committee for investigation and to give temporary assistance if deemed necessary.

E. A. Reynolds was granted a building permit to enlarge his garage premises.

Mr. McNeil addressed the council respecting the purchase of road maintenance machinery, at a cost of $765, with payments extending over four years. The matter was referred to the 1927 council.

The city solicitor respecting the arrears of taxes of Moore & Keller. It was agreed that $31.24 be written off as it was not assessable. The remainder of the assessment is collectable.

The city solicitor wrote respecting arrears of assessment of property owned by Mrs. Geo. L. Owen. The advice of the solicitor will be carried out in the matter of the collections.

A. Duff reported water well completed to a depth of 100 feet.

Mrs. Postvedt wrote respecting exemption of taxes on house and lots. An application for relief under the Mother's Allowance act was made. The matter of taxes will be referred to the relief committee and an allowance of $30 under the act was recommended.

C. H. Russell, solicitor, reported that property sale to Mr. Printoff had been completed.

Fred Rennie offered to purchase the Weller subdivision for $15.00 an acre. The offer of Stuart Campbell of $1600 for this property was accepted.

The following accounts were passed for payment: General $494.13; Electric light, $341.15; Water works, $79.23; Supplementary, $271.97.

The electric light committee recommended that the extension of light to Mr. Jankowski's property be not granted.

The matter of changing lighting at the stock yards was referred to the committee.

It was agreed to resume the all night lighting service until further instructions.

The light and water committee was instructed to look into the system and change electric lights where deemed advisable. A new light will be installed at the corner of Dickson avenue and Rosemary street.

Bridges north of the power house and on Court House avenue are being filled in.

Secretary Treasurer Fraser gave a satisfactory report of the amount of taxes collected up to September 30. Over $3,000.00 more have been collected this year than last up to that date.

The properties committee submitted a lengthy report of properties sold.

Water and sewer connections were granted to J. B. McMillan and Miss

WEDDINGS

BERRY — GALE

A quiet but beautiful home wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gale, Beatrice street, Wetaskiwin, on Wednesday, September 29th, at 8 p.m., when their youngest daughter, Ida Florence, was united in marriage with Earl Berry, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Berry, of Wetaskiwin.

The ceremony was performed in the living room in the presence of the parents of the contracting parties and a few other immediate family relatives. Rev. A. L. Elliott officiating. The bride looked charming in a wedding gown of powder blue georgette with silver trimming and lace, wearing a bridal veil with a wreath of orange blossoms and carried a sheaf of Opheelia roses.

After congratulations were extended and the register signed, the party repaired to the dining room where a very sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

The happy young couple left on the 9:40 train for Edmonton, and were given a very lively farewell march and shower of rice and confetti. They will make their home in Edmonton, and carry with them the best wishes of their many friends of Wetaskiwin and elsewhere.

PROMINENT MAN

DIED SUDDENLY

Mr. Walker Craig received a telegram that his father had passed away; very suddenly at his home in Prince Edward Island on Saturday evening last, the funeral to take place on Tuesday.

Mr. Craig was one of the outstanding men of his province, noted for his charity, integrity and dependability, and his word was as good as his bond. He was the class of man that helps build up a nation.

Mr. Craig was associated in business with the Montgomery brothers of this city, who deeply regret the loss of their much esteemed and highly respected friend.

NARROW ESCAPE

FROM TRAIN WRECK

Three young ladies, one in his teens, were before Police Magistrate Scott on Tuesday morning in the Juvenile Court on a charge of train-wrecking. The C.P.E. south train at 10:15 Sunday morning was rounding the shoulder of the hill above North Red Deer when the two fore wheels of the front truck of the engine mounted two spikes which had been placed lengthwise on the rails with the points north, and these two wheels left the rails and carried along on the ties, the rest of the engine followed, the ties and of the train not leaving the rails. Nearly 400 tons were run over by the truck wheels and cut and damaged before the engineer could stop the train on the down grade. It was fortunate the engine did not leave the track as it would have gone down the bank into muskrat lair.

It appears that the older boy persuaded the younger ladies into the scheme "to see a smash" as he said, and they lay in the bushes as the truck wheels bumped along the ties, the inspector Parker, of the neglected children's department, took the older boy to Edmonton, and the other two were left in charge of their father—Red Deer Advocate.

MORE GRAVELLING ON CALGARY TRAIL YET THIS AUTUMN

CONTINUOUS GRAVEL ROAD TO EDMONTON FROM LACOMBE IS PLANNED

Edmonton, October 5.—More gravel is to be spread on the Edmonton and Calgary highway this fall. The season's program as originally planned has been completed, but the government has decided to go on with the work, and tenders are now being called for by the department of public works for the spreading of gravel on portions of the road, which, when done, will give a continuous gravel road from Edmonton to Lacombe. In some places this will mean one coat and in others two coats.

The work is to begin by October 15, and will take six weeks, with good weather. It is not anticipated that there will be any difficulty on this score, as even if the weather intervenes the work will be carried on correspondingly later into the fall. All the gravel required for the purpose is already in stockpiles at railway sidings along the way, and the contract will be merely for spreading it during October and November instead of next summer, as first intended.

WM. IRVINE HAS MAJORITY OF 747 OVER S. G. TOBIN

R. W. Manley, the returning officer for this constituency, made his official count on Friday last week, and found that the candidates had received the following votes: Wm. Irvine, U.F.A., 3,897; S. G. Tobin, Conservative, 3,150; and S. G. Tobin, Liberal, 3,150. Mr. Irvine, therefore, has a majority of 747 over Mr. Tobin, and 1,654 over Mr. Russell.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM WILSON

One of the pioneer settlers of the Angus Ridge district passed away at his home in North Vancouver on Saturday last at the age of seventy-six years, after a few days' illness with pneumonia. Deceased was born near Buxton, Scotland, and passed through Canada at the age of eighteen years, en route for California, where he was employed for a couple of years at the copper trade. He then took a trip to the arctic regions before taking up a homestead in Idaho, where he resided about ten years. In 1912 he came to the Angus Ridge district and homesteaded, residing there until 1912, when he moved to Vancouver.

In 1932 he married in California, and his wife predeceased him nearly two years ago. He leaves three sons and one daughter, William, Edward and Fred, and Mrs. W. Ryerson, of the District Lake district, to mourn his loss.

The remains were brought to Wetaskiwin on Wednesday's train to be laid away in the Wetaskiwin cemetery. The service was held in the First United Church by Rev. A. L. Elliott, and many of the old unit friends were present to pay their last respects to the departed. The pallbearers were R. M. Angus, Wm. Thirk, George Waterston, A. A. Ellis, Eric Tost and Thos. Spencer.

MRS. M. E. DORLEY

The death of Mrs. M. E. Dorley (nee Hutchison), took place on September 20th, at St. Joseph's hospital at Regina, Sask. The deceased was 27 years of age, and was born at Buxton, Nova Scotia, coming to the Ponoka district with her parents in 1904. She was married to H. H. Dorley three years ago, who is left to mourn her loss, with two little daughters, the youngest a babe at five days. Besides her eldest brother, J. Hutchison, of Buxton, she leaves her parents, three brothers and three sisters living in the Wetaskiwin district. The funeral took place on Thursday, September 23rd, services being held from the Episcopal church at 10:30 o'clock. The interment was in the Ocean View Cemetery.

SACRED CONCERT BY UNITED CHURCH CHOIR ON SUNDAY

The choir of the First United Church is holding a sacred concert in Angus Theatre on Sunday evening next, October 10th, commencing at nine o'clock sharp.

Mr. Jack Williams, bass soloist, of Knox United Church, Edmonton, and Knoll at this year's Alberta Musical Festival, will be the special soloist.

The following program will be rendered:

1. Anthem, "Gloria in Excelsis," modified, by Choir and Orchestra.
2. Solo, selected, Mr. Jack Williams.
3. Overture (a) "Le Chevalier Breton" Herman; Gavotte (b) "Dance of the Butterflies" by Orchestra.
4. Anthem, "Awake, Psalter and Harp" by the Choir.
5. Piano Solo, "Chimes of Notre Dame" Maurice Iwan, (orchestra accompaniment), Mr. L. D. Wright.
6. Solo, selected, Mr. Jack Williams.
7. Suite, "Ballad of the Flowers" H. H. Woodward, by Choir and Orchestra.
8. March, "Abschied Des Gladiators" Blankenship, by Orchestra.
9. "God Save the King."

A collection will be taken.

THREE TOWNS VOTE FOR BEER

Edmonton, Oct. 5.—Voting rejected the local option yesterday by a vote of 100 to 90, with five spoiled ballots, the count was 100 against local option, and 90 for local option. Out of 200 available vote, 156 were polled. The vote at Ryley was 33 for and 45 against.

Rejection of local option means that the towns involved in the local option vote, "wet," or in favor of the sale of beer by the glass.

At Rimby, in central Alberta, yesterday, the citizens voted "wet" by a ballot of 62 to 4.

Suite, "Ballad of the Flowers" H. H. Woodward, by Choir and Orchestra.

March, "Abschied Des Gladiators" Blankenship, by Orchestra.

"God Save the King."

A collection will be taken.

FIRE STARTED IN A PONOKA STORE

Fire broke out in the Edwards store recently taken over by Brody & Co. on Friday evening. For a time it looked serious, but the brigade were early on the spot and but little damage was done. Mr. Brody reports no damage to the stock. The fire is supposed to have originated through a defective pipe—Herald.

TALK ON FIRE PROTECTION AT KIWANIS LUNCHEON

Mr. Moore, Deputy Fire Commissioner for Alberta, Gives Interesting Information on Important Question. Losses in Alberta are on the Increase. Some of the New Government Regulations Explained.

The members of the Wetaskiwin Kiwanis club held another very successful luncheon Tuesday evening, the principal speaker being Mr. R. Moore, deputy fire commissioner for the province of Alberta. At the outset, he referred to October 31st to 9th, when fire protection week, and this important matter was being brought to the attention of school children, both in Canada and the United States this week, as well as being placed prominently before the public throughout the continent.

The fire losses and the waste caused by fires constitute the greatest factor in establishing the insurance rates, and the fact that the losses are so great is the reason for the high premiums. It is appalling the number of homes, schools, factories, and other institutions that are destroyed by fire caused by carelessness. The fire loss in Canada last year is estimated at $45,000,000, not including the forest fires, and this is one of the things that contributes to the high cost of living. In the matter of fires, Canada and the United States are the most careless countries in the world and the fire losses are considerably higher than in any other country. It is surprising that two out of three fires are in the home, after all the care and toll of erecting the building; and eight out of ten of these fires are preventable.

Many manufacturers deem it necessary to have their own fire brigades to give them the protection that the municipality should furnish, thus increasing the cost of production. The spirit of protection should be instilled into the new settlers. Four times as many people have been killed by fire in Canada as by railway and electric trains.

Crime often enters into the loss when property is insured too high. Statistics go to show that the losses are on the increase in Canada, as the loss in 1920 was $3,840,984 as compared with $2,691,550 in 1925, and the number of fires have increased from 727 in 1920 to 1600 last year. These do not include fires under $200.00 damage. During the year 1921 to 1925 45 lives were lost by fire in Alberta.

Referring to the new government regulations, the speaker stated that all fires, where damage had been done, must be reported to the commissioner and an investigation would be made to ascertain the cause. The department had investigated all the big fires which have taken place during the past five years and the findings are on record. The province is now divided into three districts and an inspector visits the towns and villages and gives advice respecting defects and recommends improvements. The officials, possibly relatives of owners of properties in question, could not do so.

The speaker concluded by requesting that the public take advantage of the opportunities offered by his department by reporting any fire risks which should be attended to, or where there was a suspicion that an incendiary fire might be started. At the conclusion of the address, a general discussion took place, and further information was obtained from Mr. Moore.

REGULAR MEETING M.D. MONTGOMERY

Heart and Nerves
SO BAD
Would Faint Dead Away

Those feelings of weakness, those faint and dizzy spells that come over people from time to time, are warnings that must not go unheeded. They indicate an extremely weakened condition of the heart and a disordered state of the nerves.

Those who are wise will start taking

MILBURN'S HEART
NERVE PILLS

before their case becomes hopeless, as they have no equal for restoring the heart and making the nerves firm and steady.

Mrs. C. Myrle, Yorkford, Alta., writes: "My husband was bothered with heart and nerve trouble for over a year, and at times, he used to faint dead away, and was very weak when he came to. I asked him to get me the doctor, but he kept putting it off."

I got afraid for him and went and bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and when I brought them home he did not want to take them
as he thought they would not do any good.
I told him there was no harm in trying them, and he was very glad he did as he felt better after the first dose, and after taking four boxes he has never had a fainting spell since, and feels fine in every way."

The Greatest Mystery Story Ever Written

BEAU GESTE

By PERCIVAL CHRISTOPHER WREN

First Read This
Major Henri de Beaujolais on arriving at the lone fort of Zindereen, finds the entire company dead. The commandant has been stabbed through the heart with a French bayonet. In his hand is a note, signed by Michael Geste, admitting the theft of "Blue Water," a valuable sapphire. Later, the body of an officer found next to the commandant disappears and that night when de Beaujolais' men are in camp outside the fort, shots are heard from the desert and the fort suddenly bursts into flame. Now go on with the story:

"There wasn't so much as the smell of an Arab for miles. No. St. Andre had not seen a living thing—not even the two scouts I had sent out to meet him. Nor did anyone else ever see those two brave fellows. I have often wondered what their fate was—Arabs or thirsk."

I soon learnt that one of St. Andre's mole scouts had ridden back to him, early in the night, to say that he had heard rifle-shots in the direction of Zindereen. St. Andre had increased his pace, alternating the quick march and the 'pas gymnastique' until he knew he must be near his goal. And being then perfectly alone he decided to beware of an ambush, to halt for the rest of the night, and to feel his way forward, in attack formation, at dawn.

He had done well, and my one regret was that the Arabs who had caused the destruction of Zindereen were not between me and him as he closed upon the oasis.

While the weary troops rested, I told St. Andre all that had happened, and asked for a theory—reserving mine about the man who had been with a brush, this St. Andre, ambitious and a real soldier. Although he had private means, he serves France where life is hardest, and life least attractive. A little dark pocket-Horades of energy and force.

"What about this, Major?" said he,
when I had finished my account, and having felt, we were sitting, looking our weary backs against a fallen palm tree, with coffee and cigarettes
at hand.

"Suppose your trumpeter killed the son-officer himself and deserted there and then?"
"Don't die!" said I; "that never occurred to me. But why should he,
and why use his bayonet and leave it in the body?"

"Well—as to why he should," replied
St. Andre, "it might have been revenge for this man has been the man who had ever been alone with the son-officer, whom he may have sworn to kill at the first opportunity. Some fancied or real injustice, when he was under this man at Sidi-bel-Abbes where, the night of his absence the sole survivor, and refusing in his hour of victory and triumph, may have further maddened a brain already mad with hatred, brooding, that of vengeance, I know not what of despolition."

"Possible," I said, and thought over this idea. "But, no, impossible, my friend. Why had not the son-officer rushed to the wall, or up to the lookout platform when I approached? I fired my revolver six times to attract attention and let them know that reflect had come, and two answering shots were fired. Why then he wasn't his hand and shouting for joy? Why did he not rush down to the gates and throw them open?"

"Wounded and lying down," suggested St. Andre.

"He was not wounded, my friend," I said. "He was killed. That bayonet, and nothing else, had done his business."

"Asleep," suggested the lieutenant,
"absolutely worn out. Sleeping like the dead—and thus his enemy, the tramp-eter, found him, and drove his bayonet through his heart as he slept.
He was going to blow the sleeper's brain out, when he remembered that the shot would be heard and would have to be explained. Therefore he used the bayonet, drove it through the man, and then, and not till then, he realised that the bayonet would betray him. It would lead to the eye, instantly, that murder had been committed—and not by one of the garson. So he fled."

"And the revolver, with one chamber fired?" I asked.

"No, fired during the battle, at the recounting Arab who rode around the fort discomfited, and came suddenly into view."

"And the paper in the left hand,"

"I do not know."

"And who fired the two welcoming shots?"

"I do not know."

"And how did the trumpeter vanish across the desert—as conspicuous as a negro's head on a pillow—before the eyes of my company?"

"I do not know."

"Nor do I," I said.

And then St. Andre sat up suddenly.

"Mon commandant," said he, "the trumpeter did not escape, of course. He murdered the son-officer and then hit himself. It was he who removed the two bodies when he found himself again in the fort. He may have had some idea of removing the bayonet and turning the stab into a bullet-wound. He then meant to return to the company with some tale of cock and bull. But remembering that he had already seen the body, and might have noticed the bayonet, he determined to set fire to the fort, burn all evidence, and rejoin in the confusion caused by the fire.

He could swear that he had been knocked on the head from behind, and only recovered consciousness in time to escape from the flames kindled by whoever it was who clubbed him.
This is all feasible—and if improbable
it is no more improbable than the actual facts of the case, I think."

"Quite so, mon Lieutenant," I agreed.
"And why did he not rejoin in the confusion, with his tale of cock and bull?"

"Well, here's a theory. Suppose the son-officer did shoot at him with the revolver and wounded him so severely that by the time he had completed his little job of arson he was too weak to walk. He fainted from loss of blood and perished miserably in the flames that he himself had kindled."

"Magnificent," I agreed. "The Greek irony, in effect. Killed by his own petard. Victim of the mocking Fates, and so forth. The only flaw in the beautiful theory is that we should have heard the shot. In that brooding silence a revolver fired on that open road would have sounded like a '35.'"

"True," agreed St. Andre, "a little creasfallen. The man committed suicide or was—brought alive."

"Ah, my friend," said I, "you have come to the madman theory, eh? So had I. It is the only one. But now I will tell you something. The tramp-eter did not do all this. He did not murder the son-officer, for that unfortunate had been dead for hours, and the trumpeter had not been in the place ten minutes."

"And that's that," said St. Andre.
"Let's try again." And he tried again —very ingeniously too. But he could not get forward a theory that he himself did not at once ridicule.

We were both, of course, weary to death and more in need of twenty-four hours' sleep than twenty-four coun-drums—but I do not know that I have done much better since.

As I rode back to Tokota, with my record of fever, my head opened with a tearing wrench and closed with a shattering bang, at every stride of my camel, to the tune of "Who killed the commandant, and why, why, why?"
until I found I was saying it aloud.
I am still saying it, George."

Passengers by the 'Appan' from Lagos to Birkhead, were interested in two friends who sat side by side in Madeira chairs, or walked the promenade deck in close and constant company.

The stout, grizzled lion Englishman, taciturn, and abiding time, who never used two words when one would suffice; his cold grey eye looking through, or over, those who surrounded him; his iron-grey hair and moustache, his iron-firm chin and mouth, suggesting the iron that had entered into his soul and made him the hard, cold, bitter person that he was, lonely, aloof, and self-sufficient.
(Perhaps Lady Brandon of Brandon Abbas, alone of women, knew the real man and what he might have been;
and perhaps half a dozen men liked him as greatly as all men respected him).

The other, a shorter, stouter more genial person, socially inclined, a fine type of French soldier, suave, courtly, and polished, ruddy of face and brown of eye and hair, and vastly improved by the removal, before Madeira, of a three years' desert beard. He was obviously much attached to the Englishman.

It appeared these two had something on their minds, for day by day, and night by night, save for brief intervals for eating, sleeping, and playing bridge, they intensely discussed, or rather the Frenchman intensely discussed, and the Englishman intently listened, interjecting monosyllabic replies.

When the Englishman contributed to the one-sided dialogue, a listener would have noted that he was most often of a brooding man and of a poor, speculating as to the identity of the former and the authorship of the latter.

The Frenchman, on the other hand, talked more of a murder, a disappearance, and a fire.

"How long is it since you heard from Lady Brandon, Jolly?" enquired George Lawrence, one glorious and invigorating morning, as the Appan plowed her way across a blue and sizzling Bay of Biscay.

"Oh, years and years," was the reply. "It was at Brandon Abbas for a week of my leave before last. That would be six or seven years ago. I haven't written a line since the letter of thanks after the visit. Do you correspond with her at all regularly?"

"At—no. I shouldn't call it regular George Lawrence. 'Are you going to visit Brandon Abbas this leave?'" he

"Well, I feel I ought to go, mon vieux, and take that incredible document, but it doesn't fit in with my plans at all. I could post it to her of course, but it would mean a long letter of explanation, and I loathe letter writing 'faigues' more than anything."

"It take it if you like," said Lawrence. "I shall be near Brandon Abbas next week. And knowing Michael Geste, I confess I am curious."

Major de Beaujolais was conscious of the fact that 'curious' was not exactly the word he would have used.
His self-repressed, taciturn and unemotional friend had been stirred to the depths of his soul, and had given an exhibition of interest and emotion such as he had never displayed before in all de Beaujolais' experience of him.

What touched Lady Brandon evidently touched him—to an extent that rendered 'curious' a curious word to use. He seemed to himself as he replied gravely:

"But excellent, mon vieux! That would be splendid. It will save me from writing a letter a mile long, and Lady Brandon cannot feel that I treated the affair casually, and as if of no importance. I explain the whole matter to you, her old friend, give you the document, and ask you to lay it before her. You could say that while supposing the document to be merely a canard, interesting only by reason of how and where it was found. I nevertheless think that she ought to have it, just in case there is anything I can do in the matter."

"Just that," agreed Lawrence. "Of course, Beau Geste never stole the sapphire, or anything else; but I sup-<

PREVENT THE FIRES

Asbes should be kept in metal receptacles and never in paper or wooden barrels or boxes.

Oil rags or waste should be kept in standard metal waste cans and contents removed and burned each night.

Rubbish should never be allowed to accumulate in or near buildings.

Gasoline, naphtha and other volatile oils should not be kept in buildings and should be used only with extreme care.

Steam Pipes should be kept clear of all wood and other combustible material.

Open fire hoses should be protected with sheet iron, or better, be bricked up.

Electricity, when improperly installed, is hazardous; lamp cords should not be hung on nails or wrapped around piping; paper shades should never be used. Do not tamper with electrical installations.

Stove pipes should be securely riveted and run direct to brick chimney and never through floors or partitions; protect floors under and above stoves with brick, cement, or sheet metal.

Stairways should be kept closed and clear at all times; never place any stock or shelving thereon.

Alkies of good width should be maintained; never pile stock in front of windows or against doors, as it handicaps the firemen in case of a fire.

Fire doors and shutters should be closed every night and stock should never be placed so as to hinder the ready closing of fire doors. Use metal frames and sash with fire glass.

See that all fire extinguishing apparatus is in good working order.

Damp lampblack will spontaneously ignite. So will slack and pulverized coal and charcoal, when wet.

Use safety matches; they cost no more.

Requiring all doors to swing outward in public buildings, schools, theatres, etc., may prevent the loss of many lives.

All buildings over two stories in height should be provided with fire escapes and standpipes for fire department use.

Aid in the prevention of fires and loss of life.

Don't allow children to play with matches.

Don't leave anything to the landlord; inspect your own house from cellar to garret.

Don't throw away lighted matches, cigars or cigarettes.

Don't fill oil lamps after dark or within fifteen feet of lights or fire.

Don't use oils with a low flash point.

The common, ordinary, everyday match that strikes anywhere is a menace to the community. Use safety matches that strike only on the box.

LIONS, TIGERS AND BEARS CAUSE PANIC IN FRANCE

Paris, France—Eight lions, two tigers and two bears escaped from a cage at Valenciennes, early Saturday evening and caused a great panic in that city. All the animals were captured before daylight. In the round-up, three circus attendants were injured, one severely.

One full grown lion calmly entered a cafe and most of the customers ran about without paying. Four alone remained in their chairs, one laughing loudly and declaring he had "seen them before." The lion seized a leg of mutton that was on the cafe counter and went out the back door. A tiger walked into a butcher shop and ate an entire lamb. He was captured there while asleep.

A fairly homey met a lion on a street corner. The king of beasts sniffed his hand and went on, but the man remained in a dead faint. Another lion smashed in the door of a butcher's shop, curled himself up on a pile of hats, and he was captured there while asleep.

EXPORTS OF BUTTER AND CHEESE FOR YEAR

In the twelve months ending with the sixth month of the present year, according to the Dominion Dairy news letter, Canada's export of butter decreased close upon two and a half million pounds compared with the previous year's returns, but a cent and a half per pound increase in price to some extent counterbalanced the deficit. On the other hand the total export of cheese increased by over two million pounds and by almost three cents a pound in price.

he an invaluable clue to its recovery. Handwriting, for example, is a splendid clue. She could please herself as to whether she put in into the hands of your Scotland Yard and asked them to get in touch with the police. Assume her of my anxiety to do absolutely anything I can in the matter—I'll either the jewel or Michael Geste's may be missing."

"Righto, Jolly," was the reply. "I'll drop in there one day. Probably the first person I will see will be Beau Geste himself, and probably I shall see the 'Blue Water' the same evening."

"No doubt, George," agreed de Beaujols, and added, "Do you know Michael Geste's handwriting?"

"No. Never saw it to my knowledge," was the reply. "Why do you ask? You don't suppose that Beau Geste had that do you?"

"I have given up supposing, my friend," said de Beaujols. "But I shall open my next letter from you with some alacrity. Either this 'Blue Water' is stolen or it is not. In either case that paper, in a dead man's hand at Zindernout, is interesting. But if it has been stolen, it will be of practical as well as unique interest; whereas if it has not been stolen, the unique interest will be merely theoretical."

"Not very practical from the point of view of recovery, I'm afraid. It looks as though the thief and the jewel and the story all ended together in the burning of Zindernout fort," mused Lawrence.

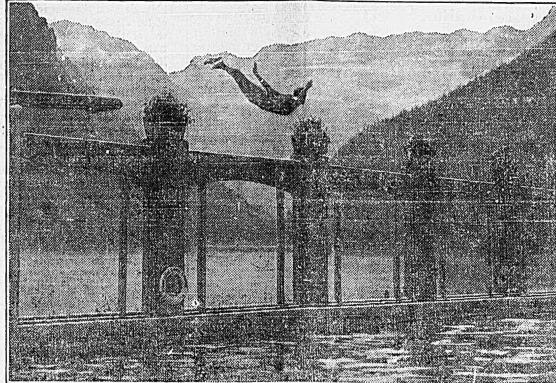

"Mon Dieu, I never thought of it before. The biggest and finest sapphire in the world, valued at three-quarters of a million francs, may be lying at this moment among the rubble and rubbish of the burnt out ruins of Zindernout fort," said de Beaujols.

"By Jove! So it may!" agreed Lawrence. "Suppose it has been stolen. If I write to you, could anything be done about making a search there, do you think?"

For a moment George Lawrence had visions of devoting his leave to jewel hunting, and returning to Brandon Abbas with three-quarters of a million francs' worth of crystallized alumina in his pocket.

"That will require prompt and careful consideration, directly we learn that the stone has gone, George," said de Beaujols, and added "This grows more and more interesting. A treasure hunt at Zindernout? Fancy the Arabs if this information got about! Fancy the builders of the new fort, and the garrison! Zindernout would

Poised Like Bird Against Mountains

Miss Lydia Fulcher, champion of the Calgary Swimming Club, has shown Lake Louise, its yellow, orange and white poppies, its distant, silent mountains and gray tourist throngs, how the swan dive should be done. She is a true mermaid of the Canadian West, schooled in the aquatic art in the Canadian government's great pool, the Cave and Basin, at Banff, where she has many times swum since her youngest days.

Miss Fulcher became a champion last year at the Banff Winter Carnival when swimmers dived into the Cave and Basin, filled with hot sulphur water from Sulphur Mountain, while the temperature outside through the open roof of the Basin was sinking below the zero mark. This fancy diver has also demonstrated her ability as a speed swimmer. The above photograph shows Miss Fulcher poised in mid-air in the most graceful of dives, with an excellent view of Mount Victoria in the distance—some six and one-half miles away. With the diver is shown also the glacier as well as the foreground in sharp detail despite the fact that the exposure was timed to the infinitesimal fraction of a second.

The new pool, situated at Lake Louise, is one of the most popular in the Canadian Pacific Rockies. It is about 90 feet in length and eight feet in depth at the deepest point. There are springboards at various heights to suit the expert or amateur diver, and the water is warm enough to attract those not wishing to venture into the cooler depths of Lake Louise itself.

going to his first love-tryst.

Had she married him, a quarter of a century ago, when she was plain (but very beautiful) Patricia Rivers, he probably would still have loved her, though he would not have been in love with her.

As it was he had never been anything but in love with her from the time when he had taken her refusal like the man he had and had sought an outlet and an antidote in work and Central Africa.

As the car entered the gates and swept up the long, winding avenue of Norman cars, he actually trembled, and his bronzed face was drawn and changed in that. He drew off a glove and put it on again, fingered his tie, and tugged at his moustache.

The car swept around a shrubby enclosed square at the back of the house, and stopped at a big porch and a hospitably open door. Standing at this, Lawrence looked into a well remembered paneled hall and ran his eye over its gleaming floor and walls, almost nodding to the two suits of armor that stood one on each side of a big doorway.

This led into another hall, from, and round which ran a wide staircase, and galleries right up to the top of the house, from the floor of the hall one could look up to a glass roof three stories above. He pictured it and past scenes, ancient in it, and a woman with slow and stately grace ascending and descending.

Nothing seemed to have changed in those two and a half decades since she had come here, a bride, and he had visited her after seven years of exile. He had come, half in the hope that the sight of her in her own home, the wife of another man, would cure him of the foolish love that kept him a lonely bachelor, half in the hope that it would do the opposite, and be but a renewal of love.

He had been perversely glad to find that he loved the woman, if possible, more than he had loved the girl; that a fellow boy's call love for a maiden had changed to a young man's devotion to a glorious woman; that she was to be a second Dante's Beatrice.

Again and again, at intervals of years, he had visited the shrine, not so much reverencing the ever-burning fire at her altar, as watching it flame up brightly in her presence. Nor did the fact that she regarded him as more than friend that he could never be more, nor less, in any way affect this undeviating unprofitable sentiment.

At thirty, at thirty-five, at forty-five he found that his love, if not unchanged, was not diminished, and that she remained, what she had been since their first meeting, the central fact of his life—not so much an obsession, as his reason for existence, his sovereign, and the audience of the play in the theatre of his life.

And each time he saw her, she was, to his prejudiced eye, more desirable, more beautiful, more wonderful.

Yes—there was the fifteenth-century chest in which reposed croquet mallets, tennis rackets, and the other paraphernalia of those games. She had once sat on that old chest beside him, while they waited for the dog-cart to take him to the station and back to Africa, and her hand had rested so kindly in his, as he had tried to find something to say—something other than what he might not say.

Opposite to it was the muniment-book, into which many an abbot and holy friar had put many a lead sealed parchment. It would be full of garlands and cushions. On that, she had sat beside him, after his fiancé with her, one New Year's Eve. . . .

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestants

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have used discontinued disreputable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful of two tablets of Bismarck Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy better health. Those who use Bismarck Magnesia never dread the approach of mealtime because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bismarck Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

FORD CAR WINS IN A FIVE MILE RACE

London, Ont., Oct. 1.—The proverbial thrill that comes once in a lifetime came to hundreds of car owners in the grandstand at the Western Fair here recently when they saw a standard Ford romp away from competitors in the special five mile race on the Queen's Park track. The Ford finished nearly five hundred yards ahead of the other contestants, making the five mile grid in 7:27. The race was a special feature of the fair program, resulting from a challenge issued by Whippet representatives to all owners of light cars.

The spectators saw a thrilling race despite the fact that the Ford led all the way. For the first four miles the contest was exceptionally keen between the Whippet and the Ford, a Chevrolet being easily lapped. The Whippet made good time on the corners, but on the straight the Ford zoomed ahead like a rocket car.

We are at all times pleased to receive items of news from our readers, but if you have an item which you could send us Monday or Tuesday, don't wait until Wednesday afternoon to send it in. It takes time to get news items into type, and as yet we have not acquired the ability to do three hours work in sixty minutes. Let us have whatever items you have as early as possible in the week. It will bore time for the later happenings to be put into type.

Here and There

Edmonton.—Large mouthed bass may soon be available to Alberta sportsmen for a batch of fingerlings and yearlings from the Kootenay lakes have been placed in Lac La Poudre by the Northern Alberta Fish and Game Protective Association.

McGill University opened her senior football season in Montreal at the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium on October 2nd, with a game against the Old Boys. One of the most enthusiastic fans of this game is W. E. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is an annual ticket holder, and who will be present at all the big games this season.

In a recent despatch from the west, W. L. Smith, former editor of the Farmer's Sun, estimates that approximately $1,000,000,000 will be added to Canada's income this year from the products of the farms of Western Canada. Last year's field crops were valued at $1,112,501,000 to the growers and it put the west in the prosperity column. Mr. Smith believes it is a fair assumption that this year the return will not be less.

An interesting estimate of Canada's per capita wealth has been made by the League of Nations, with comparative figures of 22 years ago. In 1925 the per capita wealth in the country amounted to $2,406, as contrasted with $1,100 per capita in 1903. Out of the 35 nations listed, Canada ranks third, the United States showing $2,918 and Great Britain $2,459 per capita, respectively.

With a view to obtaining financial assistance of some kind with which to aid the emigration of Austrian farmers to Canada, Dr. Heinrich Montel, an Austrian Government official, arrived in this country recently on board the Canadian Pacific S.S. "Montroyal." There are 10,000 Austrian farmers who would emigrate to Canada, stated Dr. Montel, all of them practical farmers, but they do not possess sufficient funds to pay their passage to this country.

Egypt may include Canada among those countries in which she will be without representation, according to a statement made recently by Emile Sharteni, acting as unofficial ambassador to Canada who arrived in Canada on the Canadian Pacific liner "Minnedota." Mr. Sharteni is trying to interest Egypt in Canadian food and timber, and in return expects the Dominion to reciprocate by purchasing cotton, dried fruits, by direct freightage instead of through the middlemen in London or New York.

Walking about on a two-foot wide platform, 200, 300 and even 500 feet up the outer surface of huge chimneys is all in a day's work to Henry Held, expert chimney builder and climber, who was employed recently by the Canadian Pacific Railway to overhaul a 200-foot chimney in the station yards at the Windsor Street Depot in Montreal. It took eight days for Held and his assistant, Richard Boucher, of Three Rivers, to move the platform, secured by a heavy cable, up the side of the chimney, in order to begin work at the top.

Lord Clarendon, Under-Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs in the British Government, sailed for England from Quebec on the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of France," September 29th, bringing to a close an extended tour of the Dominion investigating the conditions under which the 3,000-fifty immigrant scheme is being carried out in Canada. His Lordship, who is chairman of the Overseas Settlement Board under whose auspices this scheme is being conducted, made the statement before his departure that he was greatly satisfied with the conditions amongst Britishers who have settled in Canada under this scheme. He personally visited over 180 families.

There is not a man or woman in the district who cannot get two dollars' worth of good out of this paper every year if they will but read it. The advertisements contain news value every week and the classified advertisements often point the way to clever buying or an opportunity for convenient disposal of property.

Articles for Sale

If you have any articles for sale, the most logical way to bring them before prospective purchasers is to advertise them through the Classified Ad. columns of The Wetaskiwin Times.

These little, inexpensive ads are read by thousands each week, and if you have the real article, you can locate buyers through this medium with very little trouble and cost.

Human Flies Scale C.P.R. Chimney

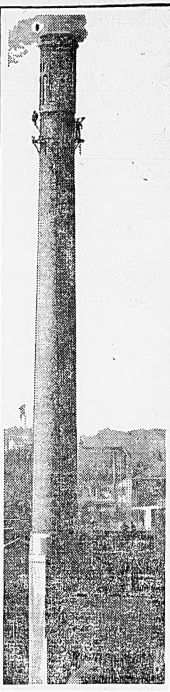

Walking around a two-foot-wide platform that encircled the top of the 218-foot-high chimney at the end of the Windsor street station train platforms, Henry Held, of New York, and Richard Boucher, of Three Rivers, drew many eyes from neighboring streets and from the windows of the C.P.R. offices. The men had been engaged by the company to repaint the bricks, clean the surface and repair the lighting rods on the huge chimney.

The work of getting the platform to the top of the chimney occupied the men for eight days. Every upward movement of the platform was to a height of six feet and at the last minute of completing this work one of the men would be standing on a single plank, the rest having been raised to the upper position. This ticklish work was to the on-looker dangerous in the extreme, but the men thought nothing of it. Asked if he ever suffered from attacks of vertigo, Held laughed and said he never had. "I feel just as safe up there as I do on the ground." He is a man over sixty years of age and has been doing this kind of work for the past forty years. "I feel right at home on the C.P.R. chimney," he added, "for I built it in 1912." However, he is thinking of quitting in another couple of years, although his nerve is as good as ever it was. He owns a half-section of land in Alberta and it is there that he says he will settle down.

Both men moved with the same ease at the perilous height as though they were walking on a street. At times, when hauling a plank upwards, one of them stooped over the edge of the platform looking sheered down the drop of 200 feet. At other times they swung out from the walls of the chimney perched on a tiny cradle. At all times they appeared to have complete mastery of the situation.

Although it took them eight days to hoist the platform to its present position, they glided from it to the ground on a cradle in slightly less than a minute.

DAYS LAND SLANDER ACTION FOR $3,000.00

A damage action for malicious slander in which $3,000 is claimed by Tekle, Stroh from Franciszek Micka has been filed in the supreme court of Alberta by F. Mickajchuk. Both the parties are married women of Daysland. It is alleged by the plaintiff that the defendant made defamatory remarks about her character publicly and later wrote them down in a letter to a friend, the text of which is quoted in Polish and translated into English in the statement of claim.—Press.

EXPORTS OF BUTTER AND CHEESE FOR YEAR

In the twelve months ending with the sixth month of the present year, according to the Dominion Dairy news letter, Canada's export of butter decreased close upon two and a half million pounds compared with the previous year's returns, but a cent and a half per pound increase in price to some extent counterbalanced the deficit. On the other hand the total export of cheese increased by over twelve million pounds and by almost three cents a pound in price.

TIMES' MAILING LIST IS GROWING

During the last few weeks The Times has added a large number of new subscribers to its mailing lists. This is very gratifying to the management, as it is evidence that The Times is the popular paper, and that it is giving the news the public demands. Nearly all the new names added are of people living in Wetaskiwin and district. This increased circulation enhances the value of The Times as an advertising medium. Think it over!

Each fall and winter a greater number of requests are received at the Scott experimental station for information regarding the storage of vegetables for use during the winter months.

The average prairie home has a dug-out or cellar underneath the dwelling where large quantities of perishable high priced vegetables may be stored. If a furnace is in the cellar it is advisable to partition off a store room to avoid excessive heat about the vegetables. A single thickness of lumber is sufficient for this partition. By opening a door into the furnace room the temperature may be raised during cold periods. When merely an earth pit is underneath the dwelling the temperature may be kept sufficiently high to protect from frost during severe weather by the use of a lantern or a single burner oil stove. For most vegetables a temperature ranging from 34 to 35 degrees is most favorable. Root crops such as carrots, parsnips, beets and turnips keep best when packed in moist sand. Cabbage and cauliflower require a circulation of air and are best piled not too deeply on slatted shelves so as to permit drying. Small numbers may be suspended from the ceiling by the roots. Celery is most successfully kept by placing upright in boxes and the roots covered with sand and kept moist. Onions should be thoroughly dried in the sun before stacking and then tied in bunches and hung up where the air can circulate. Pumpkins and squash demand a high temperature (40 to 45 degrees) and a dry atmosphere with free circulation of air and are usually difficult to store where other vegetables are kept. Potatoes are one of the easiest vegetables to store and are piled in bulk. The exclusion of sunlight prevents sprouting and the storage of whole sound tubers ensures a little waste from rotting provided the temperature is kept uniform, preferably around 55 degrees.

Canadian Wheat Pool Has 13,230,000 Acres

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The farmers of Western Canada in less than three years have established the largest co-operative organization of its kind in the world. The Canadian Wheat Pool, with its three units in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, now has a total membership of 125,000 farmers who control 13,230,000 of the 21,000,000 acres sown to wheat last year in the three prairie provinces. It is handling the sale of the wheat produced in Canada, and Canada already exports more than any other country in the world.

The first of the three wheat pools commenced business in the province of Alberta in October, 1923, and at the close of the first pool year, July 15, 1924, had handled 34,500,000 bushels of wheat shipped by its members. The price realized by the pool was $1.01 2/3 per bushel, less "one Northern" in store for William. A comparison of this price with the outside market values shows that the pool was instrumental in securing to its members at least two million dollars more than would have been the case had the pool not been in operation.

Meanwhile Manitoba and Saskatchewan were organizing pools. In the fall of 1924 they had perfected provincial organizations and the three provinces then merged their selling strength into one giant marketing organization known as "The Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers' Limited," with headquarters in Winnipeg. This agency is incorporated under a federal charter, with very wide powers. Its function is to take delivery of the wheat from each of the three respective provincial pools and to place it on the markets of the world in such a manner as to secure a price commensurate with the natural law of supply and demand. Each of the three provincial pools is responsible for gathering the wheat of its own members and placing it at the disposal of the central selling agency which is controlled by a board of nine directors, composed of the president, vice-president and one director of each provincial pool.

The largest proportion of the wheat is sold by the selling agency to importers and buyers in different countries of the world, for the agency has direct selling connections with every wheat importing country and its own representatives in 51 ports of the world. The funds which accrue from the sales are disbursed to the members of the three pools. This method of handling wheat provides a large volume through one agency and reduces the cost of operation to a minimum. In 1923 the Alberta pool's operating costs amounted to approximately 25 of one cent per bushel. In 1924, the cost to the Alberta members was slightly higher, but that the results were satisfactory in the main is evidenced by the fact that over 3,000 new members have joined the Alberta pool since the final payment for the 1924-1925 pool year went out.

It is difficult, if not impossible, to estimate in dollars and cents the actual increase in the price of wheat attributable to the operations of the wheat pool, but the pool, controlling as it does, over 50 per cent of Canada's exportable surplus, has the opportunity of preventing large volumes of wheat being rushed on to the market and creating a glut which inevitably forces prices down. Sometimes we should be serious, forsaking discourse light, and not become delirious attempting to be light. The man who always has around him a staff of jesters, and who claims numerous growl words and stunts. Some men are always uttering jokes of long ago, and they like clauding glittering, but little brilliance show. Some men are jesting drollery when solemn truth we'd always have to seize them, and drop them down the well. I hate to meet the delegate who's joking everywhere; such people I would relegate to chains and prison fare. Sometimes grown tired of wandering through dark and hazy ways, we'd faintly be silent, pondering the burdens of our days. We'd faintly be still, considering, the long, long road we went; and then he comes adding, the mirthful, jesting friend. He has a joyous narrative, about two Irishmen, a yarn in 1880 comparative with the modern, and so on. We and the man who would, we smile him with a staff, but rascally and soundly he still must joke and laugh. We think about our creditors who've waited long for pay, the bakers and the editors, the driver of the dray, the doctors and the artisans, the men who sell us coats, who've been our friends and partisans in times that tried our souls. We think about them bitterly, and of the kale we owe; then comes the joker twittingly, with jokes of long ago. Utterly jokes are useless to peace of soul and heart. They sour the kindly brow in us that should much bliss impart. They make good pilgrims roam aside from paths they would infest, and stir mild men to homicide—and still the jokers jest.—Walt Mason.

strength of the pool lies in its stabilizing power and in its facilities for selling in great quantities and in all countries.

In the matter of organization, the pool is simply itself. Each province is divided into seven main districts, and each of these districts is in turn divided into ten sub-districts, making 70 sub-districts all told. Once each year the head office sends to each member a post card ballot and a list of the members in his respective sub-district. The member has the privilege of voting for some member in his sub-district as his choice of representative at the annual meeting.

The 70 delegates so elected are called together in convention to discuss and lay down policies. The delegates also meet in seven groups of ten each and elect a director, and the seven directors so elected constitute the provincial board. The bylaws of the association provide for a recall of the district delegate or the directors by presentation of a petition signed by 15 per cent of the members in any district or sub-district. It will therefore be seen that the responsibilities for the government of the pool are in the hands of the members themselves which is held to be one of the strongest points in the whole organization.

This vast co-operative organization of farmers grew out of the experience of fixed prices for wheat established by the Canadian government during the war, regulated by an official body known as the Wheat Board. Immediately after the war the farmers of western Canada urged the government to maintain the Wheat Board, but as it had been brought into being and had functioned under a war measure act, the machinery for its existence passed out of existence automatically with the signing of the peace treaty. The wheat producers of the Canadian west, learning that the Wheat Board could not continue, began to realize the necessity of an organization of their own to handle the marketing of their wheat in a way that would provide a too wide fluctuation and secure a better stabilization of prices.

Through the pool the wheat is handled at cost, and therefore at a saving to the farmer. The central selling agency with its direct connections is able to eliminate some of the handling charges between producers and consumers that are incurred under any other method of marketing. Moreover, the pool relieves the farmer of the necessity of guessing the right time to sell his grain and assures him of the average price for the year on all the wheat it sells. This orderly marketing avoids the disastrous effects of the flooding of the market in the fall which prevailed under the old system.

Payment for wheat is made by the

Tourist Traffic Brings Many Million Dollars To Alberta

Alberta's three national parks—Jasper, Banff and Waterton Lakes, received nearly $24,000,000 from the tourist traffic in 1925, stated J. M. Wardle, chief engineer, Canadian national parks. In an address to the Canadian Good Roads convention, at Edmonton, on "Tourist Traffic."

This sum was two and a half times as much as had been spent by the Canadian government on the parks since their inception, and it was not one portion of the $400,000,000 which was estimated was spent in Canada in 1925, by Canadians and tourists from abroad.

U.S. tourists spent in Canada in 1925, it was estimated, $180,000,000, and every basic industry was there more stimulated, the tourist traffic being responsible for 11 per cent of the total business done by basic industries in that year.

In 1925, 333,400 people had visited Canada's various national parks, and by August of this year, the total had already been reached for the current year.

Jasper, Banff and Waterton Lakes got 148,000 of these tourists, of whom $7,000 came by rail, and $1,000 by auto. Eighty thousand of this total, were Canadians.

While many tourist and automobile bodies were disseminating a tremendous volume of information concerning Canada's attractions, and while newspapers and magazines added largely to the volume of publicity disseminated, there was, said Mr. Wardle, a growing need for some central tourist information bureau, which would correlate all this information, and have it ready at any time, for the informing of the tourist or the intending tourist.

All this huge traffic—a never ending stream of money entering Canada and being spent in Canada for food, farm produce, transportation, accommodation and supplies—constituted a great argument for a continuation of the work being done by the Canadian Good Roads association, added Mr. Wardle.

pool to its members at an initial price at the time of his respective sub-district. The member has the privilege of voting for some member in his sub-district as his choice of representative at the annual meeting.

The pool does not own its own elevators. Arrangements have been made with the elevator companies to take pool grain. Recently the Saskatchewan pool bought the elevators of the Saskatchewan Elevator Company, another farmers' cooperative organization. It was a big business venture, involving the transfer of 415 country elevators, 27 annexes, headquarters office, buildings, two terminal elevators at Port Arthur, one at Buffalo, N.Y., lease of the Canadian National elevator at Port Arthur and about 20 elevator agents' houses.

In Manitoba the pool is holding 100 new elevators this year and in Alberta elevators are being bought and built by the pool.

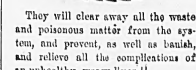

The pool is able to acquire these properties, borrow money from the banks and extend its plans over the future because the members join under long term contracts, averaging five years. The membership fee is only three dollars, one dollar of which is for a capital share and two dollars for organization purposes.

The wheat pool in western Canada is a notable example of the advancement made by the farmers of this day. Already it has shown the possibilities and advantages of cooperative marketing. The farmer of the Canadian west who is a member of the pool has realized that under the old system he sold his grain to a middleman who only bought it for the express purpose of making a profit in the reselling of it. Under the old system, too, the farmer sold his wheat and took what the market offered. In the pool system he delivers his grain when convenient and obtains the average price of the selling period, together with the saving of the handling costs. The pool price to every member is the price at Fort William less handling charges and freight charges. The latter, of course vary according to the length of the haul.

With the development of Canada's agricultural areas, only one-fifth of which are as yet under cultivation, the growth of the Canadian wheat pool may reach a magnitude never before conceived in cooperative marketing.

This is why the New '70'
Out-performs any Car of Its Size, Type
and Class

Combining the world renowned advantages of the Knight sleeve-valve motor (smoothness, long life, simplicity, economy) with revolutionary achievements in six cylinder engineering, has resulted in the new '70', a car that in speed, power and pick-up out-performs any car of its size and type and class.

It has the only type of engine that actually improves with use. No carbon to remove, no valves to grind. Better and smoother at 50,000 miles than at the beginning.

Drive it at 2 to 65 miles or faster; the engine quietly purrs on; not a semblance of vibration. At all speeds there is a complete absence of road shocks. As a result of its advanced engineering there is absolutely no wandering, no shimmying, no wheel-tight.

The beauty and smartness of the new '70' is distinctly refreshing. Four wheel brakes and other bits of advanced engineering are, of course, standard equipment.

Come and see the '70'—compare it in every way you know. Its remarkably low price, plus its many distinctive advantages place the '70' Willys-Knight Six in the front rank as an outstanding value in the moderate priced six-cylinder field.

Mr. W. E. Pritchard and family, Mr. J. Pritchard and Miss Gladys Manders of Edmonton, were recent visitors in this district.

W. H. Webb was a business visitor to Edmonton this week. Farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather and the last two Sundays saw bladders at work in the fields. The grain is badly flattened which makes it difficult to cut.

The hum of the threshing machines are heard from daylight until dark. Mrs. Manders has returned to her home in Edmonton after a four week visit with Mrs. Hoskins.

Mr. and Mrs. Christie were Sunday visitors in this district.

Kenneth Marr of Millet, spent Sunday with his brother Lytle.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Marr have taken up residence in Niagara Falls, where the children will attend school.

Miss Christie was an Edmonton visitor on Saturday.

CONFIDENCE

Henry Ford tells us that his father had much more confidence in the ability of his two brothers to make good in the hard battle of life than he had in him. It was fortunate for Mr. Ford that he was not discouraged by his father's lack of confidence. Possibly it may have acted as a challenge and an incentive to prove his ability. At any rate, he had confidence in himself, and this is a most valuable asset. It is difficult to do anything well if we discredit our own ability. The effort to sing or to speak is made all the easier by a humble spirit of assurance. Of course, over-confidence may spoil everything.

It is a great thing to have confidence in ourselves. This element, however, is found wanting in many people. This is how one writer expresses himself on the subject: "The virtue of confidence is extraordinarily rare in the world as we know it. How many young people we find who, though full of health and vigor, mistrust themselves, others and life! Need we be surprised that the life in which they do not believe eludes them as they advance, so that they feel as if they were sinking in a quicksand?" The question naturally arises as to how we can have confidence in ourselves. There is no better way to possess this virtue than by being efficient and sincere. The efficient young man is always master of his job, and he who is sincere need not fear the policeman's baton. We are constantly weakened by our inefficiency and by our faults. Courage is always inspired by what is right. No one can have faith in a bad cause. Crookedness paralyses confidence.

The raising of Angora rabbits for fur purposes is proving profitable, and is being followed on a commercial scale in England. Some of the farmers pluck the fibres, while others clip the wool from the rabbit. The fibre most practical for spinning is that which has attained a length of about four or five inches. Rabbit fur is not generally used in the manufacture of garments as a whole, but is more generally used as trimming for sweaters or like goods.

TWO ALBERTA
MINISTERS SAW
VAST OIL AREA

Edmonton, Oct. 2.—Hon. Alex Ross, minister of public works, and Hon. J. P. Lymburn, attorney general, returned from a two week trip across the line, with a fund of information about ways and means of taking care of the country's petroleum supplies. They visited the oil fields located around Tulsa, Oklahoma, where 176,000,000 barrels of oil are now being produced every year, and interviewed a large number of oil company officials with a view particularly to finding what Alberta has to learn in the way of conservation.

There is a possibility of some new legislation being put through the Alberta house in the near future for the better control and regulation of the natural gas and oil resources of the province, and it was for the purpose of getting some pointers that the two ministers went south. Just how soon or how thorough-going this legislation will be will depend largely upon Alberta's getting possession of its public domain, but in any case it is likely that something will be done to ensure better care being taken of the petroleum supplies still underground. Considerable interest in the Alberta oil fields and their development was expressed by several of the oil men at Tulsa, who had already heard of them and knew something of their prospects. It is the intention of some of these operators to come north and look over the ground with a view to making investments.

An excellent conservation policy is in force in Oklahoma, says Mr. Ross by way of comment upon the ministerial mission, and the native supplies of gas and oil are being used or harnessed with great care. The regulations affecting the industry are administered by a state commission known as the Corporation Commission, which has powers similar to those of the Alberta Public Utilities commission. These regulations are the most complete of any in the United States, having been recently compiled and so profiting from the experience of other states. Messrs. Ross and Lymburn met some of the members of the commission and discussed the conservation question with them. The disposition of residue gas was one of the main points which the Alberta ministers desired light, and they found that in Oklahoma this problem is being met by finding a market for the gas in towns and cities, and by permitting, as a last resort, the establishment of carbon black plants. Different regulations are in force in the dry gas belts.

A report on the trip will be made to the government, and effect may be given to it later in the form of legislation. The investigations of the two ministers were confined to the immediate vicinity of Tulsa, which is the centre of the Oklahoma petroleum industry, with more independent oil companies at work than anywhere else in the country.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF FIRE PREVENTION

Have all flues and chimneys properly cleaned before attempting to use them.

Look very carefully at the chimney or flue, at the point just above the peak of the roof where the chimney goes through, as the lower part may have settled, and the upper portion, being held up by the roof timbers, may have pulled away, leaving an open space or break in the chimney that will permit sparks jumping through into the attic or concealed space.

Be sure that all flue holes that are not to be used if you have a good social stop, as unburned fires are caused by sparks jumping over unused pipe holes in chimneys. Clean the gaskets and collars around all flues, removing all dirt, cinders and ash, leaving nothing in the ventilation, in this way permitting the air to cool the pipe where it goes through. Be careful that the supply of kindling is not piled up in the yard in such a manner as to carry fire to your house, in case your neighbor's house should burn.

It is best to keep all light wood, kindlings and boxes in sheds, stables or basements, in orderly piles, and not to have papers or excessive mixed with it.

Extra caution should be used in the handling of gasoline. In the winter months all windows and doors are closed, eliminating the possibility of the air blowing the inflammable vapors away.

Never use gasoline inside the house for cleaning, and when compelled to use it for any other purpose do not forget that you are handling a powerful explosive which may endanger your life and property.

Remove all dry grass and leaves from your premises before some one carelessly throws a match away.

Do not dry clothing and inflammable materials above or near hot stoves.

If you will obey the above commandments, you can prevent many fires and much loss of life and property.

Try It! It is worth while!

PIGEON LAKE COMES BACK INTO LIMELIGHT

The Alberta Good Roads Magazine says: Twenty-five years ago Pigeon Lake was one of the most famous bodies of water in the province. Here was to be found the source of Alberta's delectable whitefish in those days. Indian villages along its shores, particularly at the northwestern end of the lake, annually garnered a heavy crop of whitefish which was disposed of in Edmonton to be reshipped to other points of the west. The old fish road from the lake to Edmonton was known as the Pigeon Lake trail, and was almost as famous as the Calgary and Edmonton trail.

Today the old trail has disappeared. The winding course traversed so many years ago through timber, openings and sloughs, by Indian carts and wagons, is now growing grain in a hundred fields. But Pigeon Lake is more accessible than ever and its charm and advantages are again becoming known far and wide.

Pigeon Lake is nearly eighteen miles in length and about eight miles across at its widest point. Its water is particularly clear and pure. For many years many prominent engineers and promoters have advocated the establishment of a gravity water supply system for Edmonton with the water obtained from Pigeon Lake. The wisdom of such a scheme is still under consideration.

But there is no conflicting opinion regarding the pre-eminence of Pigeon Lake as a summer resort. Miles of the finest white sand beach available in the province have been drawing campers and holiday seekers in rapidly growing numbers the last few seasons, with improved roads making the lake easily reached from Edmonton and surrounding points. The south end of the lake is directly west from Wetaskiwin about twenty-eight miles and here on the old Indian reservation a veritable summer village has sprung up. A first class graded road connects Malmo-O Beach with the Calgary trail at Wetaskiwin, while another course being developed in the last season or so is one southwest of Leduc by way of Burdett, leading directly into Malhurst, at the north end of the lake, from the north, this also linking up with Fishermen's.

Pigeon Lake undoubtedly offers unexcelled summer camping advantages and its popularity will steadily increase. With the completion of the Lacrosse and Northwestern railway, which is now near the north end of the lake, week end excursions would open up a new field of enjoyment for Edmonton residents who are unable to make the journey by automobile. Malhurst Beach is about 55 miles from Edmonton, while Malmo-O Beach is about 70 miles by road.

1½ MILLION STONES
IN A MOSAIC FLOOR

London, England.—The Bishop of Gloucester opened for public inspection recently the finest Roman mosaic floor in Europe, the floor upon which it is thought St. Paul stood and preached. This pavement is in the burial ground of Woodchester parish church. It is nearly 50 feet square, and it is computed to have 1.5 million stones, half fine square, of varying colors between a dark bluish grey and a brick red.

The scheme of the mosaic, which is like a broad heraldic stone carved in many colors, consists of a circular rendering of the fable of Orpheus, charming groups of birds and animals with his music. Some of the figures of the animals are easy to distinguish, such as the lion, tiger, stag, leopard and pygmy. Of the birds, the peacock stands out with extraordinary clearness, with a breast of brilliant blue.

This floor, which has carried the admiration of archaeologists all over the country, is part of the banqueting hall of a huge villa which covered a few acres of ground, and was probably the residence of the Roman governor at

The time of the occupation just after the birth of Christ. The theory is put forward that if St. Paul travelled the then known world, as it was said he should for spreading Christianity, he would visit Britain, and naturally calling upon the governor, would not take his leave without preaching.

The history of the pavement since its discovery is remarkable. First found by men digging graves, it was excavated and shown to be in a fine state of preservation. The floor lies three feet below the surface—the soil was replaced. It was excavated again in 1880, and once more covered up. The soil was again removed in 1890 to allow the public to view the relic.

Ing has been erected round the spot.
